Just Transition Declaration

Context and Introduction

Just transition is about how to make work on climate change and nature loss fair. It is difficult work that doesn't have easy answers. Making Bristol fair is something that we must all aim for while understanding that a 'fully fair' society might not be possible soon.

Trying to be perfect can even make new problems. This is because it can make people who want to do the right thing become angry or upset when they are told to do better. Instead, we need to accept that we are all on a journey of getting better at being fair. This journey is never over because we can always do more. We hope this declaration will help everyone understand that they are on this journey and put the effort in. We all have to listen, learn and welcome feedback on how to do better.

Even though it is difficult work we are excited because a just transition is about making a fair and healthy Bristol that is better for everyone.

Declaration Authors

Emma Geen, disability climate justice activist.
Kirsty Hammond, activist for marginalised geographic communities. Rachel Moffat, community energy activist.
Olivia Sweeney, Intersectional environmentalist.

The authors thank the other activists who gave ideas and feedback for this declaration. This includes Suzanne Wilson at Lockleaze Neighbourhood Trust, Emily Fifield at Easton Community Trust, and Anna Markova from the Trade Unions Congress. We also thank the many others who helped but are too many to list here.

10 Key Principles

We have written this declaration to join Bristol's plans and declarations on stopping climate change and the loss of nature. It is not a plan of how to do this work but 10 principles about how the work can be done in a fair way.

Sign Up

We ask organisations across Bristol to sign up to the declaration. Signing up means they will support it and will follow the principles as best they can. We will add to the declaration over time as the city gets a better understanding of how to do this work in a fair way.

We will include the ideas and knowledge of disadvantaged people in all our work

We will make sure that the changes in jobs around this work will be good for everyone

We will help disadvantaged groups to take action that is good for the planet and nature

We will help individual people to make changes by making the big changes that makes it easy for them to act

We will make sure that the costs and benefits of the changes are shared out in a fair way

We will make our ways of talking accessible

10

We will make our organisation fair and bring the principles from the declaration into our work from the start

Declaration

The world is experiencing climate change and the loss of nature. This is making problems for lots of people. These problems are often worse for people from disadvantaged groups. This is the term we are using to talk about people who are often treated unfairly. This includes: Black and Brown people, people from an ethnic minority background, working class people, Disabled people, refugees, women, older people, young people, caregivers, Travellers, homeless people, and LGBTQ+ people. For example, people without much money often have to live in areas that are more likely to be flooded. And more floods are going to happen because of climate change.

Bristol has promised to make big changes so that the city can be better for nature and climate change. It has said that it wants to make these changes by the year 2030. These changes could make things even more unfair for workers and disadvantaged groups if they aren't part of planning them. For example, if people are stopped from using their cars but buses aren't cheap then it will be hard to move around. We need to make sure that the needs of everyone are thought about when making changes. That way the changes can make the city fairer, not less fair. For example, the new jobs made to stop climate change could be given to people who often find it harder find work because of unfairness. To do this Bristol promises to make a just transition.

When doing this work we must think about the unfairness that many groups experienced in our city's past. For example, Bristol's part in the slave trade or the impact the closing of ports and factories had on communities. Doing this will help us think how to make the city fair for everyone in the future.

What We Mean by Just Transition

A just transition shares the money and power used for changes in a fair way. The changes make Bristol better for workers and disadvantaged people.

A just transition includes everyone. This includes people who are normally left out because of unfairness

A just transition understands that everyone needs to be part of looking after the planet and nature. But it also understands that some people have more power to do this. Bristol will make sure to plan around the fact that people have different amounts of money, time and knowledge

A just transition means that Bristol understands that climate change and the loss of nature is often worse in other countries. Bristol will make changes in a way that won't make things worse for them and instead help them.

Principles

To be fair means that you don't just say the right things but do them. So we are asking people to use the ten principles below in their work on climate change and the loss of nature:

We will include the ideas and knowledge of disadvantaged people in all our work: We promise to listen to and use the ideas of disadvantaged groups at every stage of our work. This includes when planning changes, making decisions, and carrying out the changes. We will also make ways for disadvantaged groups to give feedback on the changes when they are in place. Disadvantaged groups know best how to make things good for them. We will make ways for these people to feed into our plans. Consultation often doesn't give enough power to people. So we will put effort into planning the ways we can make changes together.

We will make sure that everyone can have good future-proof jobs: By future-proof jobs we mean jobs are part of a just transition. They will be good for workers and the planet. Along with communities, workers must be at the centre of the just transition. They are experts on how to do the work well and their own needs. We will listen to worker's voices.

We will make sure they can be leaders in changing their workplaces to be good for the planet and nature. All new jobs will be good jobs that are well paid, accessible, safe, and good to work in. We will take extra care when working with workers who are in jobs that are hurting the planet. We will help them to find jobs that are better for them and the planet. This will include talking with unions about climate change action plans. We will make free or affordable and accessible training to give people the skills they need. As an employer, we will work with our workers to make a worker-led just transition agreement. This will show how our jobs can be good for climate change and nature loss[13].

There will be new jobs made to stop climate change and nature loss. We will make sure people from disadvantaged groups can get them. We will think about the needs of people who want to work but currently can't because of unfairness in our society. We will do this by making our training, workplaces and how we hire and talk to people accessible. We will hire people from disadvantaged groups into every level of our organisation.

We will help disadvantaged groups to take action that is good for the planet and nature: Lots of disadvantaged groups in Bristol are making plans to look after nature and the planet. These are called community climate action plans. We will bring the ideas from these plans into our work. We will make sure we don't put barriers in their way and offer support to them.

We will help individual people to make changes by making the big changes that makes it easy for them to act: It often isn't easy for people to make choices that are good for the planet because they cost a lot or aren't accessible. For example, a wheelchair user might want to roll to work instead of driving. But they can't if the pavements are blocked or too bumpy. Everyone needs to make changes. But some people are doing more harm to the planet and so need to do more to look after it. A just transition will happen when everyone is able to make the changes in the areas where they have some power. It will happen when people with lots of power set things up so the good choices are easy and affordable for all.

We will make sure that the costs and benefits of the changes are shared out fairly: Work on climate change can sometimes save people money. Yet it often takes a lot of money to access these things.

For example, having solar panels can save people money on their electricity but cost a lot to buy.

The changes can also be hardest for people who don't have much money. For example, sometimes people who drive cars that use dirty fuels are made to pay more. But some of these people can't afford to buy car that is better for the planet.

We will make sure that the costs and benefits are shared in a fair way. This means that people with more money pay more of the costs and those who have less get more of the benefits. We will make sure that the money that is made through making the changes stays in our city and communities.

We will make our ways of talking accessible: Some difficulties made by climate change and nature loss happen because people talk in complicated ways. Everyone has the right to understand the changes that are happening. So we will translate our important documents to make them accessible. This will include translation into non-English languages, Plain English, audio, British Sign Language and Easy Read. People can ask for other translations when they need them. This will let everyone understand and take part in the changes.

We will act in ways that support the people experiencing the worst climate change and nature loss in other places:

What happens in Bristol changes and is changed by the rest of the world. This includes our weather, nature, money, the things we buy and make, and culture. So we will work to make sure that we don't make climate change and nature loss worse for people outside our city. For example, we will make sure that we don't get rid of our waste by sending it to other countries to deal with. Bristol must welcome people who have lost their homes because of climate change. We will always look after human rights.

We will make sure everyone can cope with the difficulties made by climate change and nature loss: We will make changes in a way that means disadvantaged groups aren't more at risk than other groups. We will think about the extra problems some communities face when making plans. For example, having lots of trees makes hot weather easier to cope with. Yet there are fewer trees in areas that have less money. So, we could act on this by making sure that more trees are planted in these areas.

We will make our places good for everyone: The changes that Bristol is making will mean that our outdoor places, buildings, and transport change a lot. When we have power to make or change these spaces, we will think about the ideas and values that are behind them.

Lots of public places in our city aren't nice to be in as they are made for cars, which is bad for people and the planet. So, we will change how we make spaces in the city so they put people, communities and nature first. These spaces must be accessible and welcoming to all. We will make sure that we use this work as a way of making future-proof jobs.

We will make our organisation fair and bring the principles from the declaration into our work from the start:

We live in a world that is often unfair. So everyone can act in unfair ways unless we push ourselves to do better. We all need to do more to be better to people who are different to us. Mistakes will happen now and then. This is normal. What is important is that when mistakes happen we use them as a chance to grow so they don't happen again. We will use the principles in this declaration to shape our plans from the start. When people come to us with feedback about how we have been unfair we will welcome this as a chance to do better. We promise to listen and never stop working on doing better.

Next Steps

We are asking every organisation in the city to sign up to using these ten principles in their plans. We ask that organisations come back to the principles once a year to see what more they can do. To sign up to the declaration email BristolJTDeclaration@gmail.com.

We know that our understanding of what a just transition is will grow over time. We will continue to talk to as many people as possible and make changes to this declaration as we learn.

The just transition won't be an easy journey. Yet we are excited about it because it is about making the city and future that we all want to live in.
